

A PLACE THAT BREATHES HISTORY

In the place where Norweska Dolina is now located, a hundred years ago there were seven unusual houses. The settlement was founded by Gerhart Hauptmann, a German writer, proser and the winner of Nobel Prize in Literature. He was enchanted by the beauty of the place, its untouched nature and unique atmosphere. Soon other prominent members of the Berlin intellectual and artistic elite, such as doctors, lawyers, writers and painters, settled here. During the day they worked, hiked in the Karkonosze, rested, and in the evenings they met at disputes, loud parties and receptions.

Today, nine luxurious villas with apartments that form Norweska Dolina are situated in the same location. It was built out of respect for the heritage of this extraordinary place. Now, just like a hundred years ago, you can set off on a mountain trail from here, take a stroll along rapid streams, get on a bike and enjoy the beauty of these areas. In the evening, you may sit in one of the numerous gazebos and listen to the gentle hum of the streams that run through Norweska Dolina, watch a play or listen to a concert.
